

SEAVINGTON FARMER MARRIED

Group taken after the wedding at St. Mary's Church, Seavington, on Saturday of Mr. Hugh H. Doble, only son of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Doble, Hurcott, Seavington, and Miss Gillian Jeffery, eldest daughter of the late Mr. W. J. Jeffery and of Mrs. Jeffery, West Street Farm, Seavington.

The Rector, the Rev. A. T. Budgett, officiated and the organist was Mrs. W. W. Jacobs.

The bride, given away by Mr. F. Jeffery (uncle), wore a graceful gown in the gentle sheen of simulated wild silk, with the train captured on the shoulders with bows and scattered on the hem-line with roses. She wore a flowered head-dress and a long veil, and carried a bouquet of pale pink rosebuds, white freesias and lily of the valley.

She was attended by Misses Pamela and Elizabeth Jeffery (sisters of the bride), Tina Vaux (cousin of the bride), and Anne and Helen Derryman (cousins of the bridegroom).

The chief bridesmaid wore a full-length princess-line dress of deep blue slubbed silk. The skirt, which fell into a slight train at the back, was decorated with bows of the same fabric. She had a head-dress and bouquet of white and pink freesias.

Elizabeth and Anne wore similar style dresses in toning sky-blue slubbed shantung with matching head-bands with real lily of the valley. They carried small bouquets of lily of the valley. Tina and Helen wore white dresses in the same fabric, with puffed sleeves and yokes. They had sashes in matching sky-blue shantung. They wore white head-bands with real pink and mauve anemones, and carried posies of pink and mauve anemones.

The bride's, chief bridesmaid's and Elizabeth's bouquets were placed on their father's and brother's graves.

The bridegroom gave the chief bridesmaid a gold chain with a cultured pearl and the others gold-linked bracelets.

Best man was Mr. J. Rutter.

A reception for 130 guests was held at the George Hotel, Chard.

The presents included a canteen of cutlery from J. & B. Gibbs & Sons (Crewkerne), an electric fire from employees of Hurcott Farm, and an electric clock and tray from employees of West Street Farm.
